Residence Burned—Brakeman injured—Held for Burglary—Accidentally Shot—Herman Camp Meeting—Three Ladies Hurt—Shooting Scrape.

Destroyed by Fire.

N. J. Jones, a respectable farmer residing near Dayville, Todd county, lost by fire, his residence and contents, Wednesday morning about 7 o'clock. It is not known how the fire originated.

Fell From a Train.

S. L. Morgan, an L. & N. freight brakeman, fell between the cars near Springfield, Tenn., Tuesday, narrowly escaping instant death. The train was stopped and the crew went back and found him considerably bruised about the head and one of his hips badly hurt.

Two Ribs Broken.

Miss Dorcas Lee Carney, of Guthrie, was out driving Tuesday afternoon when the horse became frightened and ran, throwing her from the buggy. She was picked up by friends, unconscious, and was carried home. Two ribs were broken and other internal injuries were sustained and the young lady's recovery is doubtful.

Herman Camp Meeting.

It has been decided to hold a camp meeting at Herman church, a few miles east of Trenton, and the date has been fixed for Aug. 5. The meeting will last ten days and will be conducted by Rev. Jameson, of Nashville. A number of persons in this city are making arrangements to attend.

Sent on To The Grand Jury.

The dwelling house of Mr. Richard Jones, of this city, was entered by a burglar Tuesday afternoon, while the family were from home and a number of articles were carried off. Wednesday Albert Smith, col., was arrested by the police, and at his examining trial he was held over until the grand jury meets in September. He failed to give bond and was taken to jail.

A Lively Knock Down.

"Black" Bill Sergeant and Ben Kimball, two Peabroke negroes, engaged in a regular rough and tumble fight last Saturday night and both men were pretty badly punished. Kimball bit one of Sergeant's fingers nearly off during the fight. The negroes were fined $10 and costs for their pugilistic exhibition. They repaired their debts.

Shot In The Foot.

Coley, the twelve-year old son of Mr. Wm. Lacy, of this city, met with an accident at Kirkmansville Tuesday, which will lay him up for some time. He was handling a target rifle when the gun was in some way discharged. The ball entered his right foot. He was at once brought to this city where the necessary surgical aid was rendered and at last accounts the little fellow was getting along very nicely.

Narrow Escape.

Miss Katie McDaniel's horse became frightened yesterday while standing in front of the Court House and ran away. Mr. A. M. Cooper was in the buggy and narrowly escaped death. The horse ran into one of the trees at the Court House, and there made a break across the street running into the Crescent Millings Company's wagon. This upset the buggy which precipitated Mr. Cooper, catching him under the vehicle and dragging him some distance, however he escaped with but few bruises, and a torn coat. The buggy was totally demolished.

Two Ladies Nearly Hurt.

While Mrs. R. C. Pace and Mrs. Thos. Adcock, of the Herndon neighborhood, were out driving Monday afternoon the horse became frightened and ran away. Mrs. Adcock jumped out of the buggy and was very badly bruised. Mrs. Pace was thrown from the vehicle and sustained what may prove fatal injuries. Her collar bone was broken and it is feared that she was injured internally. She was also cut and bruised in many places and owing to her age—62 years—there are serious doubts about her recovery.

Shooting at Salubria.

The colored people around Salubria, near Pembroke, had a festival last Saturday night. Things went well for a time, but later in the night a row occurred between John Rawlins and George Fruit. Rawlins drew his gun and shot Fruit in the breast. The ball passed directly over the heart, but barely broke the skin and the wound proved only a slight one. Rawlins immediately fled and has not been heard from since. Fruit, who at first thought that he had been fatally wounded, was out the next day and has suffered little inconvenience on account of his injury.

WHO BOUGHT IT?

The O. V. bid in by an Attorney Supposed to Represent the I. C.

Henderson, July 13.—After three postponements the property of the Ohio Valley Railroad Company was this afternoon sold at auction to the highest bidder. Only one bid was made, but as that was equal to the upset price fixed by Judge Barr, the railroad and equipments were declared sold to Judge Alex. P. Humphreys, representing the Central Trust Company, in whose name the suit was brought against the Ohio Valley Road.

Immediately upon the conclusion of the bidding and the decree of the court, Judge Humphreys drew from his pocket a leather case from which he produced a check which he handed to Commissioner Roberts. The check was drawn by Judge Humphreys on the Bank of Kentucky for $100,000 and had been certified by the bank.

"I had $1,050,000 for the Ohio Valley Railroad and this is my deposit," said Judge Humphreys. "The bid is made by myself and Abram H. Joline, of New York."

There being no other bids, "one two three" was counted, and Commissioner Quarles announced that the property had been sold to the parties named, subject to the ratification of the court.

The general opinion is that the road was purchased by the Central Trust Company for the Illinois Central Railroad, which is known to have already secured a controlling interest in the bonds of the road.

His "Heavy Weight" Wife.

St. Louis, Mo., July 13.—James Gorrey, of St. Louis, is 34 years old, and weighs 133 pounds, and to-day he took as his bride, Mary Emma Ryan, of Louisville, Ky., who is fair 40 years old, and weighs 140 pounds.

It was a case of true love that has lasted five years. Mary Emma also has the rheumatism in the ankles, and has to walk on crutches, but, she remarked when interviewed: "Look here, young man, I'm no giddy young thing, I can write up in the papers. I'm 40 years old, and know my biz, see? Jim and me have been fast friends for five years, and concluded to get married. He's a good fellow, or I wouldn't come from Louisville to marry him."

Not Before August 1.

Owensboro, Ky., July 14.—T. J. Yandell, of Marion, has arrived in the city, but states that the transfer of the Collector's office will probably not take place before August. His home with Eugene Guarnaschi Company as surety, have gone forward for approval, and the transfer will be made as soon as a special revenue agent is detailed to act. Collector Yandell is reticent, but evidently suspects a suspension of civil service rules as to division deputies and the entire clerical force of the office.

Fire at Cedar Hill.

Guthrie, Ky., July 13.—Fire destroyed the store house and contents belonging to J. F. Ruffin at Cedar Hill, a few miles south of here. Loss about $3,000. Insured for $1,500. A dwelling house near by, belonging to W. M. Jackson, was also burned. Loss on the latter $500. No insurance. One of the long distance instruments and a local box of the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company were in Ruffin's store and were destroyed. It is not known how the fire originated.

State School Census.

Frankfort, Ky., July 14.—Superintendent of Public Instruction, Davidson, has completed the State school census with the following result: Country districts, 582,087; Louisville, 82,014; other cities, 65,981. Total, 729,782.

Mr. Davidson declines to admit that the returns from Louisville are correct, but the $2,014 are put in to make up the total. The number of children last year was 736,105.

One Hundred White Caps.

Clarksville, Tenn., July 14.—It is reported here that a band of 100 whitecaps propose to rid the southern portion of this country of pillagers. It is said three men have been stripped and whipped with hickories. The accused were charged with neighborhood depredations at farmhouses. Considerable excitement exists.

MADE HARMLESS.

BY CLOTH INVENTED BY A CHICAGO MAN.

Inventor Claims Ships Can Be Made Proof Against the Most Powerful Projectiles.

Chicago, Ill., July 10.—Humanity no longer need fear the heretofore deadly bullet, for the power to wound and kill has been taken away. With a piece of his bullet proof cloth across his breast, Casimir Zeglen to-day suffered five bullets to be fired at him, and they all felt harmless at his feet.

Upon the roof of the four-story building at Ogden avenue and Twelfth street, the experiments were conducted. A cabinet was made of wood and iron, with an opening near the top, where Brother Zeglen was to expose his breast, covered with the bullet-proof cloth, to the aim of Lieutenant Zarneski. Fifteen paces were measured off and enclosed by a rope so that the man with the pistol would not be disturbed.

Doctors examined Brother Zeglen's pulse and heart and pronounced them to be perfectly normal. A strip of the cloth 20 inches by 14 was drawn across his chest and tied firmly with strong strings. There were five inches of armament for the rest of his body, with three inches of oak planking and two of galvanized iron. The spectators were loath to hurry the possibility of an accident, but Brother Zeglen shouted to begin.

"Are you ready?" came the call from Dr. Borland.

"Fire away," was the response, and a flash of fire came from the mouth of the revolver. Physicians and the few favored spectators rushed to the cabinet before Lieutenant Zarneski could dislodge the discharged cartridge. A shriek came from Zeglen's mouth, but Brother Zeglen, who was unmoved by the crack of the pistol and the faint touch of the lead through the fabric and the thickness of coat, vest, cravat and heavy shirt.

"What was the sensation?" came from every side.

"Merely feeling as if some one had struck me with a sharp pointed stick," was the response. "I would never suspect, from my knowledge of firearms, if I were not acquainted with the quality of the cloth, that a pistol had been fired at me."

Lieutenant Zarneski used a thirty-two caliber revolver for the first test, and the bullet struck the cloth, was blunted. It was removed by the slightest touch, and did not penetrate the fabric. The lead was blunted, while the other bullets, which were slightly disturbed. Dr. Borland claimed the piece of metal, through Zarneski said he would not part with it for $1,000 in money.

The Austrian doctor grew nervous when he leveled the pistol the second time. It was a piece of rare foresight when the wood and iron were placed about the cloth, was the proof cloth would not protect him. The missile struck the wood and raised a cry of horror from the crowd of medical men and experts. Brother Zeglen was not in the least discouraged, and never moved from his position, while half a dozen of the onlookers asked if he was injured. Lieutenant Zarneski raised the revolver again and the bullet sped through to its mark. So confident was the Reurmetronist that he was not going to quit that he did not withdraw from his place, but asked that the caliber be increased. A long bullet from the thirty-eight box was chosen, and an army Colt's revolver loaded.

"Had you better not withdraw a few paces more?" suggested Dr. Borland.

"No," came the reply from Bro. Zeglen, who has not yet learned to speak English, with an accompanying grunt of confidence. The noise of the lead striking the cloth was like the crack of a pistol against the window. The heavier bullet had more effect on the fabric than the lighter one, and the brother was again besieged with anxious questions.

"There was a difference in the effect of the two calibers," said he. "It appeared as if the man who handled the imaginary switch got a little violent. If he was in the army, and some of our American sharpshooters were trying to pick him off, I could stand about 15 of those bullets in the same place. I think I'll write to General Weyler after I complete this little experiment and let him know if he would like to be supplied."

Another 38 caliber bullet was sent home and dropped listlessly in the gravel roof.

Brother Zeglen's chest was examined, but no sign of an abrasion was shown. While a brief respite was given to the inventor before the heavy-duty cartridge was tried on him, Dr. Westerschulte volunteered. The doctor had only a thin flannel shirt between the armor and his body, yet

IDEAL PEOPLE'S PALACE.

Abram Hewitt Tells How a Rich Man Might Do Great Good.

Peter Cooper's Plans Modified—British and American Types of Workmen's Institutes Compared—The Work of the Y. M. C. A.

What is the ideal People's palace? Depend upon it, a good many rich men are thinking about the answer to this problem.

There is something more than a college in the recent building of such great establishments as the Auburn schools in New York, the Pratt Institute in Brooklyn and the Armour Institute in Chicago. Men of wealth who realize their responsibilities are providing many American cities, and even towns of moderate size, with splendid institutions, wherein instruction and amusement are provided in varying proportions for all who wish. And there are others ready to follow the example.

There is no one better qualified to answer the query than ex-Mayor and ex-Congressman Abram S. Hewitt, of New York, who, as the son-in-law of Peter Cooper, has for many years been prominent in the management of Cooper union. Edward Cooper and Mr. Hewitt have in the aggregate put into the union millions of dollars. They plunged their hands deep into their own pockets a few years ago to repair and enlarge the building—a purpose for which no funds were left for Peter Cooper's will. And Mr. Hewitt has recently given another illustration of family methods in announcing a new gift of $250,000, bequeathed by John Cooper, $100,000 of which was devised in proper form, and $150,000 added as an afterthought in an unannounced special loan rendered valid only by the generous agreement social opportunities of a club it would be advantageous. This was not Mr. Cooper's plan in building the union, but such an addition need not interfere with its object.

"Do you agree with Rev. Dr. Hainsford," I asked, "that two great downtown churches, one on the East side and one on the West, with their reading-rooms, choruses and the like, would do more for New York than a big up-town cathedral?"

"That is a controverted point about which I do not care to express an opinion," replied Mr. Hewitt. "But if cleanliness is next to godliness, I see no objection to making it easier for people to get more of both by establishing bath in the basements of churches, as Dr. Hainsford suggested. Nor is there any objection to clubhouses and recreation rooms. The cathedral is a different matter altogether. It is an evidence of that faith in the Divine Providence which exists in the community. I have not been able to give money for the cathedral, although I have been asked to do so, because I have had other uses for all my means."

"Should the ideal People's palace have a gymnasium?"

"Oh, yes; certainly. I would put in everything. I would have every possible facility for instruction or enjoyment. I would give them tennis alleys and handball courts and billiard tables, so that instead of playing pool for 25 cents a coin outside, they could play billiards for nothing in the union. Yet I would make education the main purpose of such an enterprise. And not only education, but the variety of courses open to them, or the thoroughness and extent of the instruction, should be the chief thing to be considered. Education is a good thing. If we had more money for the union we would add to its educational work. We have never of her heirs. Two gentle and courteous gray-headed men in late middle life, looking big business careers rather easily and lavishing thought upon a beneficent work, Mr. Hewitt and Mr. Cooper are good examples for other men of like opportunity to watch.

"What is your ideal of a People's palace or institute for an American town of 100,000 inhabitants or upward?" I asked Mr. Hewitt.

"If the question is how a wealthy man may build a monument to his own memory," said Mr. Hewitt, "I have nothing to say. He would best go and put his monument in the graveyard, where it belongs. In founding his union, Mr. Cooper had no such wish or ambition. It was not even his intention that his name should be linked with it. He called it simply 'The Union' but the legislature added the word 'Cooper' to the name, against his wish and to the embarrassment of the work as he had planned it. He intended merely to found an institution for the benefit of his fellow men, and anyone who wishes to approach the undertaking in that spirit will find an almost unlimited field for useful endeavor in such work as we suggest."

"Do you think the aesthetic element has been unduly neglected in the London People's Palace?" Are not its bare walls more depressing than such institutions in this country?"

"No, I do not think so. They are doing a great work in London with limited means, and have wisely chosen essential rather than luxuries. The poor man earnestly seeking education or improvement doesn't expect to tread on velvet carpet or drink champagne out of cut glass goblets. I would never spend money on luxurious fittings for such an institution if the outlay involved any curtailment of its opportunities for education or recreation. It is true that there is in Cooper union an art museum established by my daughters, and this is an aesthetic feature, but it is a part of the scheme of art education, which is necessarily and essentially aesthetic. Given abundant means, however, a People's palace could hardly be made too beautiful or attractive. After all the educational essentials had been provided, I would have in such a building games and recitations of every sort. I would let its users smoke, though I think I would try to point out to them that smoking is a wasteful and unnecessary habit, and would have no interesting figures upon the premises; but with this exception, if the founder of a union for educational purposes were to add all the had money enough to approach a limit to its usefulness. The ideal has never been attained, and without attaining it altogether, a People's palace might go a long way further than any has yet gone, in making the lives of the people bright, healthy and happy."

Mr. Hewitt added that any People's palace should be orderly and well kept, so as to teach those who frequent it the habits of neatness and the value of system.

He has a field of twenty-two acres of wheat, six of which was sown from wheat that he had thoroughly washed in a solution of five pounds of bluestone to twenty gallons of water, and the crop on the wheat sown with seed thus treated is perfectly clear of smut, and is on an average, well headed, while the crop on the other sixteen acres has a great deal of smut, many small triling heads and is otherwise inferior to the six acres. It requires but little trouble and expense to wash seed wheat in this mixture.

The exhibit par excellence of the Nashville Centennial that is of ethnological value is the Chinese Village, which shows the mode of actual life among these curious people. There is a village in reality with the people pursuing their customary avocations, barbers, restaurant keepers, etc. There is a "beauty show" with any number of Chinese women, who are considered belles in their own country, and there is a theatre, which is visited by large numbers and enjoyed by them all. The plays enacted are in all cases historical, and some of them are elaborately set. The Chinese plays sometimes last for a year in China, as they take up some one monarch's reign and show with detail all the interesting events. There plays, however, are all short, and are explained so that every one can understand them. The village includes a number of children who are very clever, and are delighted to see us visitors little American girls. The children are from San Francisco, but the adults are from China direct. Hundreds of Chinese keep up the idea all the time that the visitor is actually in the "Flowery Kingdom." The quaint costumes, the home life and the surroundings, including the great dragon show, are well worth seeing.

Carbuncles

Appeared Each Season Until Blood Was Purified With Hood's Sarsaparilla—An Indolent Ulcer.

"For several years I was troubled with carbuncles on my forehead and jaw bone. They would appear in winter and return the next summer. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and have never had any carbuncles since. My little son had a fever and an indolent ulcer appeared on his left limb and spread half way around it. Our physician recommended a blood purifier, and I gave the boy Hood's Sarsaparilla with gratifying results." A. G. B. JAMES, Knoxville, Miss.

"I have been a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism and in October began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. I continued its use until January when I could go about as well as any one and I have had no acute pains since." L. W. MINNICK, Grand Isle, Louisiana.

The Railway Age says that the number of railroads for which receivers were appointed in the first six months of 1897 has been greater than for the corresponding period of 1896, although the mileage of the roads which have passed this year under the control of the courts is not nearly so great as last year. During the last six months nineteen roads, with a total mileage of 1,314 and a capital stock of $6,622,000, have been placed in the hands of receivers. The elevated roads—the Metropolitan, of Chicago, and the Brooklyn elevated—supplied $68,000,000 of the capital stock of the roads which went into the hands of the courts. A total of twenty-four roads have been sold under fore-closure during the first six months of this year. Their total mileage was 3,882, and their capital stock $173,830,000.

Judge Kelly will be a candidate. Cecil, Ky., July 14.—J. E. Kelly, of this place, will likely be a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor two years hence. He has received assurances of support from friends throughout western Kentucky and has signified his intention to become a candidate when the proper time comes. He represented Trigg county in the legislature back in the sixties or seventies, and has been county judge four years. He was a candidate for circuit judge early in the spring, but withdrew before the Murray convention. He is one of the leading lawyers of western Kentucky and will make a strong race.

Miss Flench Outley, Clarksville, Tenn., July 14.—Gus Hiett, the notorious train robber, has been placed in jail here. He was brought here from Memphis, showed the officials where he had buried valuable papers after the robbery near here, and was then detained here on a bench warrant issued by Judge Tyler, of the Criminal court. Before a Magistrate Hiett pleaded guilty to the charge of highway robbery. His bond was fixed at $5,000, and he was committed to jail in default. He will probably be indicted by the grand jury this week and tried immediately.

The officers spent several hours with Hiett at the jail, urging him to divulge the names of his partner in crime, but the train robber could not be moved. His secret is likely to remain securely locked up in his mind.

It is the general opinion that the desire to return Hiett to Memphis is at the bottom of a plan to get the man into Alabama for trial, for in that State train robbery is capital crime. Hiett, it is understood, is glad to be here and is anxious to have his trial in Clarksville. He has retained G. L. Pitt as his attorney.

Continental Officers Re-elected, Nashville, July 14.—The directors of the Tennessee Cattle and Horse Raisers' Association, elected last night re-elected all the old officers, and the same committees were appointed by President Thomas. The auditor's report showed that the total expenditures up to date had been $583,462. The plans were discussed for running excursion trains and thereby increasing the attendance.

Aurora, Ky., June 21, 1897.—S. A. Whole of this place writes the following statement for publication: "I am pleased to say Hoot's Sarsaparilla has given me satisfaction. My health was very poor, I was doped and had a tired and nervous feeling, and a poor appetite. I also had chills, but after taking Hoot's Sarsaparilla I was completely cured."

Hoot's Pills are the favorite family cathartic. Easy to take, gentle, mild, etc.

IT STILL LIVES.

A Bryan Pole in Carroll County Putting Out Heavy Follies.

During the last Presidential campaign a Bryan pole nearly 200 feet high was raised at Sanders, a small village on the L. & N. railroad in Carroll county. The pole proper is a tall sycamore reaching a height of probably 160 feet. It is about two feet in diameter at the base and tapers to about half that diameter at the top, where the flag staff is spliced on, and is set ten feet in the ground and is as straight as an arrow. Several weeks before being brought to Sanders it was cut in Indiana where it was squared at both ends and stripped of its bark. The "raising" did not take place for some time after the arrival of the pole at Sanders, so it was pretty well seasoned when it was planted. There was an immense crowd present at the raising and the air resounded with shout after shout as the monster was slowly but surely hoisted from a horizontal to a perpendicular position with the center at the apex and the stars and stripes floating from the masthead. Bob Ellis, who is postmaster and general boss of the town, also one of the best fellows alive, was master of ceremonies, and performed his part to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The cause of Bryan was defeated at the November election, but the pole was allowed to stand to-day as a living testimonial to the everlasting life of the cause in which it was raised. Early in the spring the pole began to put forth shoots and now it is almost covered from bottom to top with a rich green foliage in which the birds sing and build their nests.—Bardonia Record.

THE WONDERS OF SCIENCE.

Lung Troubles and Consumption Can be Cured.

An Eminent New York Chemist and Scientist Makes Free Offer to Our Readers.

The distinguished New York chemist, T. A. Slocum, demonstrating his discovery of a reliable and absolute cure for Consumption (Pulmonary Tuberculosis) and all bronchial, throat, lung chest diseases, stubborn coughs, catarrhal affections, general weakness and nervousness of flesh and all conditions of wasting away, will send THREE FREE BOTTLES (all different) of his New Discoveries to any afflicted reader of the Hopkinsville Kentuckian who writes for them.

His "New Scientific Treatment" has cured thousands permanently by its timely use, and he considers it a pleasure and a duty to suffer humanity to donate a trial of his infallible cure.

Science daily develops new wonders, and this great chemist, patiently experimenting for years, has produced results as beneficial to humanity as can be claimed by any modern medicine. His assertion that lung troubles and consumption are curable in any climate is proven by "heartfelt letters of gratitude," filed in his American and European laboratories in thousands from those cured in all parts of the world.

Medical experts concede that bronchial, chest and lung troubles lead to Consumption, which, uninterrupted, means speedy and certain death.

Simply write to T. A. Slocum, M. C., 98 Pine street, New York, giving post office and express address, and the free medicine will be promptly sent. Sufferers should take instant advantage of his generous proposition.

Please tell the Doctor that you saw his offer in the Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

The Annual Outing to Old Point.

August 11th is the date set for the next annual tour to Old Point, just at a time when the nights are cool, and the hot July days have passed, making the trip all the more desirable, and those who go can look forward to a most delightful outing. These personally conducted parties have been run for so long that the elegant man in which they are conducted has so impressed the public that it is useless to go into details. The trip is so arranged as to give those who have time to make a long day an opportunity to do so, and still offer many advantages to the tourist who can only spend a few days.

This is by far the most attractive and instructive trip offered to the traveling public and you should make your arrangements to go. The indications are that the crowd from this city and county will be the largest that ever took advantage of this delightful outing. Clarksville will also swell the number greatly and there will be some delegates from Paducah, Princeton, Madisonville, Lexington, and many other Kentucky and Tennessee points.

The above special tourist rates will be put into effect June 20th, via Detroit and Cleveland, and will be in effect until Oct. 6th, new month steam passenger steamers. The round trip from Cleveland, including meals and berth, cost $18.00 from Toledo $14.00 from Detroit $11.50. Send 2 cents for illustrated pamphlet. Address, A. A. SOHANTZ, Detroit, Mich.

Nine men were arrested at Elkhart on the charge of whitepapering John Aere and family on the night of July 5.

MADE HARMLESS.

no mark showed where the lead had struck.

"It was like a blow from a child," said Westersche, "and did not hurt me in the least. I would be willing to run the gauntlet of a whole regiment with that sort of a thing around me."

Then the trial of the 44-caliber was made. Lieutenant Zarnacki hesitated before taking aim.

"Fire" came from behind the shield, and the long-barreled pistol spoke o' a.

It seemed like a rebound of the lead, but the heavier the caliber the less the effect. Instead of imbedding itself in the fabric the lead sprang like a thing of life from the impenetrable surface. The bullet was flattened on one side as if it had struck the fabric glancing. Dr. Borland pronounced it the most dangerous sort of a shot and that it would tear through the frame of a man unimpeded.

Zeglen was over come by the success of the undertaking. There was a larger indentation in the fabric than on any of the previous occasions, but beyond that there was no indication that a heavier caliber had been used.

POULTRY HOUSE PLAN.

Building Calculated to Accommodate from Eighty to One Hundred Fowls. Several readers have asked for a plan for a good hen-house that will accommodate from 75 to 100 fowls, the same to be constructed in a manner that will keep the fowls warm during severe winter weather, and enable the builder to keep several varieties or small lots of 20 to 25 in one room of it. Nothing said about cost.

We always presume that those contemplating going into the chicken business are not seeking merely a place to spend ready cash, but for the purpose of making pay out of the employment. We always endeavor to aid such persons by suggesting economy in the construction of buildings to the degree that will encompass the possibilities of making them strong, durable and comfortable. It is generally conceded that fowls kept in small docks do best, and in building up a plan for keeping the number mentioned we have followed up that idea closely, and present a five-room house with each room ten feet square, four of which are intended to provide accommodation for at least 20 to 25 fowls.

To economize time, labor and expense, we suggest that this house be framed from posts set in the ground two and one-half feet, and with two by four studs laid on top, running all the way around and across inside partitions, and the same six inches above ground. It would side with lock boards up and down, battens cracks, and make four gables, running the roof together to one point at center of feed room.

It is not essential that the building shall be over seven feet from floor to square; less will do. I prefer that a hen-house be roofed with either boards or shingles, as metal or slate get too hot for the best welfare of the fowls. The lights should be placed in so that they will point to west or east and should be from two and one-half feet to three feet wide and five to six feet high and well protected with strong wire netting.

The partitions that separate the four rooms from the feed room are intended to be made mostly of wire netting or lattice work. The nets are arranged with the entire construction made in feed room, with loop-hole from each room leading into the alley that fronts the nest, which allows the fowls of each room to pass secretly into the nests in the dark and still be in no way connected with another set of nests.

The idea of making these nests in the feed room is so that the eggs can be taken out without going into the adjoining room, also hens setting can be let into center room, fed, and replaced in their nests without disturbing any of the laying fowls.

The dotted lines are to locate how the roosts can be put in diagonally, about three or three and a half feet high, and a slanting floor placed underneath so that the droppings will not get onto the floor, and can be easily gathered by pushing them with a scraper down to the corner where they will drop into a portable box prepared for that purpose. This can be done every morning if absolute cleanliness is desired. The reader will observe that this arrangement affords the fowls full range on the floor of each room without the necessity of having the droppings to annoy them through the day.

For heating and keeping warm, the sides lined with wind-proof paper will add much comfort, and I suggest the placing of a cheap stove in the center room, which will add materially in extreme weather in keeping the temperature up, which will add great comfort to the fowls and insure their laying right along without interruption, regardless of the extreme cold.

The ranges outside can be arranged in size to suit the owner of the fowls, either large or small, according to the room he may have to expand in. By all means do not make such inclosures too small. The entrance door, two and one-half feet wide, opens into a short entry which opens with a door to the room on the right and left and also into the center room.

The house will cost in the neighborhood of $10, labor included. I think an amateur who thinks of taking on three or four breeds of fowls, and a good poultry house of this plan suited to the requirements of fitting out several breeding pens—George E. Scott, in Ohio Farmer.

Time for the Poultry Year. As the weather varied about the house or yards will prevent disease, in many instances, and always prove of benefit in any case. Vermin is destroyed by the casting of roasts, walls and floors with this penetrating, purifying powder, while in the outer run the earth is cleaned of much of the poisonous quality by use of lime. No harm comes from the lime habit, but on the contrary a great deal of good may be effected by contracting it. Cleanliness is the key-note, and the employment of agents of this sort is the right thing.

Fed, ducks are good market fowls. For large, heavy fowls the fowls low.

Dampness causes leg weakness in ducks.

The good layers are a few and generally on the more.

Charity is an eternal debt, and without limit.—Quessell.

IN LOWER CALIFORNIA.

The Last Stronghold of the Mexicans and Indians.

Graphic Description of a "Round-up" The Ceremonies of the "Day-After" Compared with Those of Half a Century Ago.

(Special San Diego (Cal.) Letter.) San Diego, Cal., Dec. 10.—The "last stronghold" of the aborigines now disappearing from California, and also of their successors and conquerors, the Mexicans who are as rapidly disappearing from the Arizian land of which they were once the rulers, American civilization and enterprise have proved too much for these old-thinking brown races, and there exist only a few Indian villages in a country where 100,000 were found by the conquering Spaniards. The Indians, like the Mexicans, prefer the mild climate of southern California to that of the cold north, and are here found in their native simplicity, as they had a century ago. Near a Mexican village is found an Indian rancheria, both primitive and distinct. The Indian clings to the brush of his ancestors, and the Mexican prefers the adobe which was handed down to him by his ancestors. These buildings will last for a century or more in this dry climate, and as repairs are easily made with adobe, the building is preferred as a matter of economy and to save labor, which are important items to a Mexican. These rancherías are stronger than settlements with many, yet these uneducated people are found in the little huts where their ancestors for several generations have lived, and as their land is taken away by acre by the land grabber they still remain, only asking that the Americans leave to them the house of their fathers. Many of these old adobe ruins are found throughout California: in the narrow streets of cities, in the midst of growing orchards, or out on the highways half concealed amid a grove of live oaks, or by the drooping branches of the evergreen which seemingly is intent on protecting the long deserted hut from further depredation. A few yards distant, and stone crosses are seen. They mark the graves of the former occupants of that deserted place. Those of a later generation have left the family home, driven hence like the Indian whom their ancestors dispossessed, and the Indians of today, are practically homeless. Some of them cultivate gardens and small farms, but the majority lead the life most natural to Mexicans—that of vaqueros. They like an outdoor life, do not like to farm, and they are natural horsemen, and as they no longer have large ranches and herds of cattle, they "hire" out to the American rancher and keep track of his cattle and sheep. This is a large and growing industry in southern California, and the Mexican is better fitted for it than the American cowboy. He also works for less wages, and while he may drink his fill of his native wine, he is not a drunkard, and discharging revolvers or other vice play the bravado. The Mexican is an expert horseman, and here his services are also needed to "break" young horses for the saddle and field work. He is at home at the rodeo and the lasso work. The rodeo is a roundup of cattle, and the mantanzas is the killing, or slaughter, of beaver for the market. Here, the Mexican is seen at his best, and this section is about the only place in California where this novel sight can be seen as of old; for elsewhere the industry has disappeared. Under Mexican rule there was an official known as the "Judge of the plains," who had charge of all matters pertaining to the rodeo. He kept a record of each rancher's brand and officially recorded it in the marking of cattle. The main reason for a rodeo is to brand the young cattle, and to change the brand of those that have been sold, which is done by placing the new brand over the old and burning it out as the other is burned in the hide of the following animal. In those days cattle roamed wild, and there was plenty of room, and consequently they became mixed. In order that each rancher may separate his own when necessary, the rodeo was ordered, and it was a judicial proceeding. Now trespass laws limit each man's cattle to one line of land. The judge of the plains, or Judge of the plains, was an important official, and he decided all cases of disputes as to ownership, the equal rights of the stockmen. The rodeo was held once a month, the "court" moving from ranch to ranch until each one in his district had been visited. After getting all desired information he would order the rodeo to be held at a designated ranch, the one having the largest corral, and to this place all of the cattle were driven after having been rounded up by the vaqueros. Everybody attended—coming on horseback and in wagons, bringing their families and their children, and the day was a festival. The rodeo was a day of things, practically there was no fighting. This is a dangerous condition to get into, it is easy to get into and mighty hard to get out of it, unless you go to it in the right way.

There is a remedy that has pulled thousands of people right out of this depth of despair. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It acts directly upon the stomach and liver. It restores their natural capacity to nourish and purify the system. It purges away bilious poisons, feeds the nerve centers with the rich blood, and drives out the "blue devils" of melancholy and nervousness. L. J. Warren, No. 1000 O Street, Sacramento, Cal., writes: "During the last five years I have been doctoring with so many different doctors here and in San Francisco for diseased stomach, but none of the doctors were any benefit to me. Two years ago I completely cured myself by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I have taken fourteen bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' for four lines of 'Pleasant Pellets' and I am entirely well of all stomach trouble. Can sleep nine hours every night, and am now ready to go to work again."

the horse's flanks almost at every jump as he rides in a swinging gait as swift as the wind. As the herds are driven up a few tame cattle are sandwiched among them, and these at once make for the corral, for they have been there before for feed. The wild ones follow. A corral is 100 or 200 yards square, inclosed by an adobe wall or stone wall five or six feet in height. The vaqueros ride around the cattle sorting them out, and when all those of a particular brand have been found the others are driven out. Each vaquero takes charge of his own herd. When an animal is to be branded the vaquero sits on his horse and holds his lariat around the animal's horns. The animal may prance around, but it is held firm by the horse throwing himself back on his haunches, which signal is given him by the vaquero thrusting him in the flanks as he throws the lariat. An assistant takes from a portable fire a red-hot iron branding instrument and applies it to the desired spot. There is a white smoke and a roar, and then the animal is released. The vaquero is more than the cowboy and does not find it necessary to lasso the foot of the animal when branding him. He does that only at the mantanzas, or killing.

The rita is about 100 feet in length, one end of which is tied to the point of the middle and the other is formed into a loop or slip-knot, and when the animal is driven the signal is given him to stand firm and begin to haul in. After the rita has been thrown around the horns another vaquero lassos the animal from the rear, when he is once thrown horns he is caught. Then the Indian comes into service. The Mexican vaquero does not wish to do the work of the Indian, who is employed to skin the beaver for market. The Indians are very expert with the knife. The women and children sit around the corral in such positions as are by common consent awarded them as prizes. These are carried in baskets to their adjacent rancheria a few days following. This was the custom in the olden times; the Indians naturally look for the continuance, and when there is a mantanza they scent the feast from afar and go uninvited. But the Mexican vaqueros are paid for their services. Formerly, their ancestors owned the cattle and the lands, and then it was a labor of love with them.

The roundup of to-day is a tame affair compared with the genuine Mexican rodeo.

At a recent festival in San Diego some of the "original settlers" were rounded up and photographed. They are paying the "deer Indians" in the United States. Some of them have never missed a roundup in the past century. Their only effort is in talking of the old rodeo times and smoking cigarettes. F. M. SCANDLAND.

FOUND DEAD.

Why did he do it? He had everything to live for—his wife, his friends, money; but he shot himself through the heart. Why? He could have given a good reason himself. But everything looked gloomy to him. He was in a gloomy frame of mind. It was the way he looked at life that day. He had been living in too much of a hurry, rushing and driving at business, hurrying through his meals, cutting short his sleep. His nerves got on edge; his stomach and liver got out of order; he grew dyspeptic and melancholy.

When the digestion is out of order there is little use trying to look on the bright side of things, practically there is no bright side. This is a dangerous condition to get into, it is easy to get into and mighty hard to get out of it, unless you go to it in the right way. The first half wound up with a comparative shortage of about $25,000, and the first week of the second half shows a drop of $6,570. The detailed report is as follows: freight, $238,145; passenger, $107,840, and miscellaneous, $26,847.

The Acme Mills Company's buildings for the first week of July are about completed. They have already opened their office and are now in the market for the purchase and storage of wheat in any quantity. They would be glad to have the farmers call on them before selling or storing their grains.
